Those tunnels the U.S is bombing in Afghanistan? They were built by the CIA nytimes.com/2005/09/11/mag... (via @GabiElenaDohm)

The first time bin Laden had seen the Tora Bora caves, he had been a young mujahedeen fighter and a recent university graduate with a degree in civil engineering. It had been some 20 years before, during Washington’s first Afghan war, the decade-long, CIA-financed jihad of the 1980’s against the Soviet occupation. Rising to more than 13,000 feet, 35 miles southwest of the provincial capital of Jalalabad, Tora Bora was a fortress of snow-capped peaks, steep valleys and fortified caves. Its miles of tunnels, bunkers and base camps, dug deeply into the steep rock walls, had been part of a CIA-financed complex. Bin Laden had flown in dozens of bulldozers and other pieces of heavy equipment from his father’s construction empire, the Saudi Binladin Group, one of the most prosperous construction companies in Saudi Arabia and throughout the Persian Gulf. According to one frequently told story, bin Laden would drive one of the bulldozers himself across the precipitous mountain peaks, constructing defensive tunnels and storage depots.

How is this ‘collaborating with an enemy nation’? Last time I checked, Wikileaks was not a country. @HuffingtonPost  ‘Roger Stone’

In perhaps the most shocking tweet of the evening, which appears to now be removed, Stone even suggested having collaborated with an enemy nation in the WikiLeaks scandal that rocked the presidential election last November. Stone tweeted that he “never denied perfectly legal back channel to Assange who indeed had the goods” on Hillary Clinton, using hashtag #CrookedHillary in a throwback to a familiar campaign motif.

Democrat Party Ties to Russia

While Secretary of State, Hillary Clinton personally signed off on a transaction that gave Russia a 20% stake in the entire U.S. stockpile of uranium.

Shortly thereafter, Uranium One made $2 million in donations to the Clinton Foundation, and Bill Clinton made a Moscow speech for a $500,000 cash payoff.
